Contents

Commentary

5  The Death of Osama bin Laden  Nigel Inkster

11  Echoes of Gunfire: bin Laden, the US and the Greater Middle East  Jonathan Stevenson

19  Japan’s Earthquake: The Politics of Recovery  Masahiro Matsumura

26  Noteworthy

After bin Laden

29  Al-Qaeda’s Franchising Strategy  Barak Mendelsohn

Al-Qaeda’s future depends not only on how its core leadership responds to bin Laden’s death, but also on the reaction of groups that have adopted the al-Qaeda brand.

The War for Libya

51  Libya and the Responsibilities of Power  Bruce D. Jones

Libya is a small test for the international order. When harder tests come, rough norms not underpinned by an underlying, shared security concept will not suffice.

61  Libya after Gadhafi  Saskia van Genugten

Fears that Libya will become the next Somalia are probably over-blown, but any democratic transition is likely to be protracted and fragile.

75  European Defence Policy from Lisbon to Libya  Anand Menon

The EU’s inactivity in the face of a crisis with obvious security implications for its member states has led to anguished soul searching.

91  Black Swan over Fukushima  Bruno Tertrais

It took more than a decade for the world nuclear industry to recover from the 1986 Chernobyl disaster. It is unlikely to be any faster this time around.

101  Disarmament and Non-proliferation: Towards More Realistic Bargains  Tanya Ogilvie-White and David Santoro

Bold vision and even reductions in nuclear weapons and their roles are not enough to unite the international community in pursuing disarmament and non-proliferation. Something more is needed.
119 Ten Rules for Cyber Security  Eneken Tikk
The response to cyber threats cuts across several areas of law. Ten rules can be formulated to focus debate on the quality and interpretation of existing frameworks and the need for new ones.

133 Chinese Suspicion and US Intentions  Michael S. Chase
No matter what assurances Washington provides, many in China are concerned that the United States is becoming increasingly uneasy about China’s emergence and will try to prevent it.

Review Essays
151 Superpower on a Shoestring  Ian Bremmer
159 America 2012: Duelling Exceptionalisms  John A. Gans, Jr

169 Book Reviews
  Middle East  Steven Simon
  Latin America  Russell Crandall
  Europe  Erik Jones
  Environment, Resources and the Economy  Bill Emmott

196 Brief Notices

Closing Argument
205 As Good as it Gets?  Dana H. Allin and Erik Jones

About the IISS  The IISS, a registered charity with offices in Washington, London, Manama and Singapore, is the world’s leading authority on political–military conflict. It is the primary independent source of accurate, objective information on international strategic issues. Publications include The Military Balance, an annual reference work on each nation’s defence capabilities; Strategic Survey, an annual review of world affairs; Survival, a bi-monthly journal on international affairs; Strategic Comments, an online analysis of topical issues in international affairs; and the Adelphi series of books on issues of international security.