Strategic Comments is the Institute's online source of analysis of international security and politico-military issues. Published ten times per year, with five articles in each issue, Strategic Comments briefing papers offer succinct, timely and cogent insights of consistent authority to its core readership of policymakers, journalists, business executives and foreign-affairs analysts. Since its foundation in 1995, Strategic Comments has harnessed the considerable expertise of the Institute's research staff and members, as well as the broader strategic-studies community.

'Strategic Comments offers the rarest but most valuable of qualities in our overloaded age – brevity and cogency'

Jim Hoagland, The Washington Post

Highlights from 2008 include:

Terror in Mumbai Attacks raise intelligence, security and political questions

Withdrawal from Iraq Baghdad wins timetable on US military presence

Can Obama re-engage Iran? Prospects for new approach on nuclear issue

Pakistan on the brink Threefold crisis rocks country's foundations

The West's financial crisis Extraordinary measures to restore stability

Climate change and the US election Better prospects for a global deal – whoever wins

Spiralling drug violence in Mexico Besides military action, police reforms are needed

Republication rights

The appetite of newspaper readerships for coverage of international affairs is large and growing. This reflects not only a rise in general curiosity about an eventful outside world that is now more accessible than ever before, but also the recognition that developments in one part of the world can have direct – and often not immediately obvious – repercussions at home.

For newspapers, this secular trend poses a variety of arduous challenges:

- Information or Analysis:

Though there may be an increase in the information available on global affairs, there has not been a commensurate rise in the availability of forward-looking and original insight and analysis demanded by readers.

- The Sifting Challenge:

The process of distinguishing truly significant from merely interesting trends and events is increasingly time consuming and resource intensive.

- Costs of Expertise:

The costs of maintaining international networks of foreign correspondents can be prohibitively high; meanwhile, difficulties often exist in trying to locate reliable, recognised experts.

The authority and expertise of Strategic Comments is available to national newspapers through flexible Syndication Agreements, which allow them to republish premium-quality analysis at highly attractive rates.

- Immediate and Flexible Delivery:

Syndication clients are guaranteed electronic delivery of the 50 Strategic Comments articles published in 10 issues annually immediately upon publication. Articles are transmitted in multiple formats to facilitate easy republication. All clients are assigned a direct contact among the senior editorial staff of Strategic Comments, with the aim of fostering interaction and maximising the utility of the syndication agreement.

'Strategic Comments fills a major gap in coverage of strategic issues through up-to-date and authoritative commentaries'

Zbigniew Brzezinski, former US National Security Advisor

- Join an International Community:

By taking out a Syndication Agreement to republish Strategic Comments each newspaper joins an international community of high-calibre sources of news and analysis. Strategic Comments' core qualities have enabled it to hold Syndication Agreements with such varied and distinguished international publications as: The South China Morning Post (Hong Kong); Neue Zürcher Zeitung (Switzerland); El País (Spain); Hellenic Diplomacy and Defence (Greece); Público (Portugal); Milliyet (Turkey); The National Post (Canada); Reuters Business Briefing (United Kingdom); China Times and Taipei Times (Taiwan); La Stampa (Italy); Arsharq Al-Awsat (Saudi Arabia); Straits Times (Singapore); The Hindu (India); Yomiuri Shimbun (Japan); Dong Ah Ilbo (South Korea) and La Nacion (Argentina).

The following syndication packages are available to newspapers:

- Special Executive Corporate Membership: The newspaper becomes a Special Executive Corporate Member of the Institute. This gives it the exclusive national copyright and translation rights to reprint Strategic Comments, as well as the right to reprint sections of other publications (The Military Balance, Strategic Survey, Survival and the Adelphi series). Such newspapers should inform the Institute of what they wish to print, but do not have to pay an extra fee.
- 'Presidential' option: Newspapers may republish all 50 Strategic Comments. Such newspapers will also have privileged access to the online Strategic Comments database, which holds all coverage since 1997. The database may be used by the newspaper staff for research purposes. Extracts from articles contained on the database may be republished, subject to consultation with the Strategic Comments editorial staff.
- 'Ambassadorial' option: Newspapers will receive all Strategic Comments and may republish up to 25 articles a year.
- 'Diplomat' option: Newspapers will receive all Strategic Comments and may republish up to 12 articles a year.

For a free Syndication Brochure and further information, including costings and trial Syndication Agreements, newspapers should email strategiccomments@iiss.org

The International Institute for Strategic Studies (IISS) is the world's leading authority on political-military conflict. The IISS is the primary source of accurate, objective information on international strategic issues for politicians and diplomats, foreign affairs analysts, international business, economists, the military, defence commentators, journalists, academics and the informed public. The IISS owes no allegiance to any government, or to any political or other organisation.

Routledge also publishes the following titles for the IISS:

- the authoritative Adelphi series of books on issues of international security
- The Armed Conflict Database, a regularly updated IISS online resource providing detailed information on more than 70 conflicts worldwide
- The Military Balance, the leading annual reference work on the world's armed forces
- Strategic Survey, the annual review of world affairs
- Survival: Global Politics and Strategy, the Thomson Reuters ranked bi-monthly journal of international affairs

A combined subscription rate is available for the above publications (excluding the Armed Conflict Database) and prices are indicated on the order form overleaf.
