

Contents

The Case for Abolition

7 Why Eliminate Nuclear Weapons? James E. Doyle

The world must reject the myths and expose the risks of the ideology of nuclear deterrence if it is to meet the challenges of the twenty-first century.

Commentary

35 Russia, Syria and the Doctrine of Intervention Samuel Charap

Russia's refusal to play a constructive role in resolving the Syrian crisis has been misunderstood.

42 Noteworthy

China Spies

45 Chinese Intelligence in the Cyber Age Nigel Inkster

Foreign intelligence collection was not a major feature of China's intelligence culture until fairly recently. Now cyber-espionage has led to a step-change in capabilities.

Ending Wars

67 Colombia: Ending the Forever War? Kyle Johnson and Michael Jonsson

Negotiations to end the world's longest-running civil war have recently begun. Prospects for peace are better than ever before, but significant obstacles remain.

87 The US and Afghanistan After 2014 Paul D. Miller

The United States is not scheduled to depart from Afghanistan in 2014 – a year for transition, not withdrawal. Nor should it, considering what is at stake.

103 Overcoming Obstacles to Peace James Dobbins and Laurel Miller

The memory of a few spectacular failures has created the impression that nation-building seldom succeeds. Yet most such operations over the past 20 years have produced positive results.

On the cover

Mushroom cloud from the US atomic bomb dropped on Nagasaki, Japan, on 9 August 1945, killing nearly 74,000 and injuring as many more.

On the web

Visit <http://www.iiss.org/publicatons/survival> for brief notices on new books in Arms, Arms Control and Technology; Russia and Eurasia; the Middle East; the Asia-Pacific; and Politics and International Relations.

E-editions

Survival issues are available for purchase as e-books or through the Survival for iPad app. See <http://www.iiss.org/publications/survival/> for details.

121 Pakistan's Populist Foreign Policy William B. Milam and Matthew J. Nelson

In Pakistan, one of America's most important Muslim-majority allies, the effect of public opinion on the country's politics, including its foreign policy, may be critical.

135 The Limping Euro Giorgio La Malfa

The euro will not be rescued by bold political steps. It will continue to limp along, prevented from collapsing by forces with no interest in facing market turmoil and currency crises.

Review Essays

145 The Tyranny of Want David P. Calleo

In more normal times, Robert and Edward Skidelsky's How Much Is Enough? could be dismissed as brilliant but irrelevant. Today, with capitalism in an unfolding crisis, it seems unwise to ignore it.

151 The Myths of October Alexa van Sickle

Fifty years after the Cuban Missile Crisis, lessons are still being learned, old myths still persist, and new evidence is emerging.

165 Book Reviews

Arms, Arms Control and Technology Bruno Tertrais

Russia and Eurasia Angela Stent

Middle East Ray Takeyh

Asia-Pacific Lanxin Xiang

Politics and International Relations Pierre Hassner

Closing Argument

197 Letter from Italy Giacomo Tagiuri

Twenty years ago Berlusconi filled a gap created by political disaffection and rising populism, which have returned with a vengeance. Prospects look grim, but there are reasons for optimism.