Is Putinism a Thing?

- 7 Putinism, Populism and the Defence of Liberal Democracy Olga Oliker
Although Russia is a contributor to and beneficiary of the current illiberal surge, its causes lie within democratic countries, and solutions must be found at home.
- 25 Russia and China: A New Model of Great-Power Relations Samuel Charap, John Drennan and Pierre Noël
By accommodating each other's strategic interests, Russia and China have achieved an effective partnership despite significant imbalances between them.

Commentary

- 43 The Logic of Banning Nuclear Weapons Beatrice Fihn
If the international community is ever going to get rid of nuclear weapons, it must start by clearly rejecting them.
- 51 The Businessman President Michael Pocalyko
An understanding of Donald Trump's presidency must begin with his uniqueness in a domain that has been alluded to since his election, but little understood.
- 58 Noteworthy

Practising Jihad

- 61 Can Women Be Soldiers of the Islamic State? Nelly Lahoud
With a small number of high-profile exceptions, the Islamic State's women are expected to be the enablers, not the agents, of jihad.
- 79 Innovation and Adaptation in Jihadist Digital Security Aaron Brantly
Online discussions among jihadists depict a community that is alert to changes both in the technology and the laws and policies of its adversaries.

103 Incorporating Offensive Cyber Operations into Conventional Deterrence

Strategies Michael Fischerkeller

Cyber capabilities, whether used alone or in combination with other military tools, offer an opportunity to influence an adversary's decision-making.

135 The Colombian Peace Process: Trial and Error Paul Angelo

To satisfy popular demands for justice, while advancing the long quest for an enduring peace, the Colombian government must learn from past mistakes.

Review Essays

149 America's Path from Malaise to Primacy Russell Crandall

Hal Brands's Making the Unipolar Moment is a breath of fresh air on a topic politicised, or as often romanticised, for far too long.
